Men, women and children fainted, others screamed, and as additional timbers would crack renewed screams arose. Those not in the room at the time of the accident were called to rescue. Exits were chopped into the cellar, through which unconscious guests were taken out from above.

CUBA.

Should the United States Purchase the Island?

Interviews With Several National Legislators on the Subject.

Congressmen Foes Favor Recognition First—McCreary Wants to See it a Republic—McCreary, however, Congressmen, however, and Others Favor Buying.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—Within the past few days there has been considerable gossip about town in regard to a plan whereby the United States is to secure possession of Cuba by an outright purchase from Spain.

Said Senator Palmer: "I should most certainly favor the purchase of Cuba. It is uninhabited, but to purchase it with its present inhabitants on it is more than I can endorse."

Congressman Foss (Ill.)—The first thing we should do is to recognize the illegitimacy of Cuba. But anyway, I favor the purchase of Cuba, either by purchase or through a voluntary act of the Cubans. In view of her proximity to Florida and the location of the proposed Nicaraguan canal, we ought to have her.

Congressman Mercer (Neb.)—Providing we can buy it for a fair price, I say buy it. It would settle everything and prove a valuable possession for us. Congressman Brewster (N. Y.)—I favor the purchase of Cuba. We ought to have the island. We need it, and if Spain will sell I should say buy it.

Joe Cannon (Ill.)—I don't want to commit myself on a question which may come before me for legislative action.

Congressman Hitt—Yes, I must beg to be excused from answering your question at the present time. You remember we tried to buy Cuba once, but Spain wouldn't sell.

Congressman McCreary (Ky.)—I want to see Cuba a republic, and I want acquiring any territory not contiguous to us.

Congressman Cooke (Chicago)—If Spain were to ask us to buy the island and we could do so under favorable conditions and with the acquiescence of the Cuban people, I might be wise to make the purchase.

Congressman Hatfield (Ill.)—It seems to me that Cuba, situated as it is, so near to this country, is part of it geographically, and should be part of it governmentally. I think a good many commercial men in this country are derived from the purchase of the island.

Congressman McEwen (N. J.)—I am not sufficiently acquainted with the situation to know just what is the best thing to do, but it looks to me from an uneducated point that we should have Cuba. Many advantages would be derived from our purchase of the island.

Congressman Mahoney (Buffalo)—Cuba is of much value as a commercial center, but I can't see my way clear to endorse a plan for the purchase of the island.

Congressman Woodman (Chicago)—We ought to have Cuba with us. I believe we should have annexed her long ago. The advantages to be gained by having her a part of this country are too numerous to need mention here. I approve of the plan to purchase the island.

Congressman Bartholdi (St. Louis)—Cuba is doing fairly well as she now stands. Let her remain under the rule of Spain. I don't see how we can be benefited by the purchase of the island. Our commercial relations with Cuba would be materially increased, and I disapprove of the plan.

Congressman McKee (Ark.)—I favor the purchase of Cuba. We need it and should take steps accordingly. I would vote for a plan looking to the accomplishment of the proposition.

Congressman Hollister (Ill.)—My sympathy is with the struggling Cubans, and I wish them all success, but as for the United States purchasing the island, I am not sufficiently familiar with the subject to form an intelligent opinion. Cuba undoubtedly would be advantageous to the United States, but whether it could be bought is a more difficult question.

Sentinel Hawley (Cal.)—We insulted Spain once by offering $200,000 for Cuba. I hardly think it could be purchased to-day for twice that amount. Then, too, I fail to see how our commercial interests would be promoted by our acquiring the island, though other may see matters through differently shaped glasses. I don't favor the plan to purchase Cuba now.

Congressman Howell (N. J.)—I am favorable to any plan looking to the acquisition of Cuba. Cuba unquestionably should be part of the United States.

Congressman Rutledge (Mo.)—As to the purchase of Cuba by the United States, permit me to say I don't believe we are in a financial condition to purchase anything. I am not sure whether I favor Cuban annexation or not.

Ex-Congressman Tim Campbell (N. Y.)—The old world buyin' it, let's go down and take it.

Miner (Wis.)—Am in favor of buying Cuba if it is necessary to keep it out of the hands of foreign powers; otherwise, I favor letting it alone.
